Heavy Rains Can Save NW Forests

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heavy rains were needed today to douse more than 125 fires in the four western provinces. Rain was not predicted.

Only cool and cloudy weather was forecast for today for some fire areas in the four western provinces. Rain was not predicted.

Alberta had 46 fires. More than 30 fires were burning in Saskatchewan. Manitoba reported an estimated 25 fires, while B.C. also had about 25.

Seven firefighters, missing after a blaze broke loose in an area 200 miles northwest of Edmonton, were located unharmed Wednesday.

Ray Smuland, superintendent of the Grande Prairie Forest Division, said Alberta's present outbreak is the worst since 1957.

However, no official estimate of damage was available. The total could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars when the cost of fighting the fires and timber losses are tallied.

Alberta's fires are burning in areas covered by White Spruce, Lodgepole, Jack Pine, Black Spruce, Balsam, Poplar and Tamarack.

In northern Saskatchewan more than 1,000 men were battling more than 30 fires. Squaw Rapids, site of a hydro-electric project, reported a fire burning across 10,000 acres with men still being sent into the area.

In Manitoba 200 men were battling a big blaze near the $140,000,000 provincial government hydro-electric project at Grand Rapids, 235 miles north of Winnipeg.

In the Prince George area of northeastern B.C. about 25 fires were burning. Fifty-six men and eight bulldozers held a fire guard in the path of a 25,000-acre blaze at Stuart Lake, 40 miles west of Dawson Creek, B.C.

Firefighters in B.C. expected little help from the weather today. Skies will be mostly sunny, but winds will be light. Temperatures will range as high as 62.

FIRST ALL-CANADIAN TEAM CONQUERS MOUNT MCKINLEY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four men have reached the summit of Mount McKinley, the highest peak in North America, it was learned here Wednesday. They are the first all-Canadian team to conquer the 20,300-foot mountain, 120 miles north of Anchorage, Alaska.

Roy Mason, past president of the British Columbia Mountaineering Club said they reached the peak last Sunday ending an expedition which started May 7.

Members of the team are Ralph Hutchison, 31, a lawyer from Nanaimo, B.C., Werner Himelbach, 30, a North Vancouver carpenter, John Wilson, 33, a veterinarian, Consort, Alta., and Jim Woodfield a 32-year-old Vancouver insurance agent.

FULTON SAYS:

B.C. Never Sought Halt On Columbia River Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia has never suggested that the Columbia River treaty with the United States should not be signed, Mr. Fulton said. It was obvious that a Jan. 13 letter from Mr. Bennett dealt only with a "collateral matter" of financing.

Mr. Fulton said that a draft treaty signed by himself and by Deputy Minister E. W. Bassett of B.C.'s lands department had been sent to provincial Lands Minister Williston Jan. 9. Mr. Williston, party to federal-B.C. discussions on the Columbia, had been asked to advise of any dissatisfactions, power laid down in Vancouver.

Pearson Demands View Of Wheat Sale Treaty

VICTORIA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson Wednesday night demanded the entire text of an agreement Communist China and Canada have signed for the sale of Canadian wheat to be tabled in the House of Commons. He spoke to a party rally here in support of candidate David Groos, contesting the May 29 Esquimalt - Saanich by-election.

B.C. 'Lagging' In Education

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia School Trustees' Association survey indicates the province lags behind other Commonwealth countries in teacher subsidization, incentive and recruitment.

Survey, made in Australia, New Zealand Britain and South Africa, support association recommendations and certain sections of the controversial Chant Royal Commission on education report.

The 10-page brief, released Wednesday, has been sent to the provincial government for study.

PLEA REJECTED

Freedom Riders Vow To Ride On

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Integrationists today turned a deaf ear to U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy's plea for a cooling-off period on integrated bus trips into Alabama and Mississippi.

Negro leaders vowed they'll increase efforts to crack bus segregation in the deep south despite the jailing of "Freedom Riders" by police in this Mississippi capital city of 150,000.

Two buses carrying 27 "Freedom Riders"—25 Negroes and two whites—pulled into Jackson four hours apart Wednesday accompanied by bayonet-wielding Mississippi National Guardsmen.

City police officers, ringing the bus terminal, arrested the 27 when they refused to leave. The "Freedom Riders" remained in jail in lieu of $500 bonds each.

Ben-Gurion, Diefenbaker Talk On Mid-East Dangers

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel briefed Prime Minister Diefenbaker on current Middle East dangers in an hour-long conference today.

No statement was made afterwards by either leader. Further talks may be held later today.

Mr. Ben-Gurion left after the conference to attend a reception in his honor at Ottawa's Jewish Community Centre.

An Israeli spokesman said before the meeting that Mr. Ben-Gurion intended to impress Mr. Diefenbaker with his fear of the dangers inherent in the United Arab Republic's military buildup using Russian arms and jet fighters.

Today's meeting was arranged hastily Wednesday when a scheduled conference was interrupted by a vote in the Commons on the government's capital punishment bill.

Mr. Diefenbaker was host Wednesday night at an official dinner for the visiting 74-year-old Israeli statesman. Guests included leaders of the Jewish communities in Eastern Canada.

The second bus left Montgomery—scene of bloody rioting last week—about four hours later. Aboard were 15 "Freedom Riders" and a driver.

When each bus stopped at the Mississippi-Alabama border, Alabama troops got off and were replaced by Mississippi guardsmen.

About the same time the first arrests were being made here, the attorney-general—brother of the president—made his plea for a cooling-off period in Washington.

Kennedy declined comment on the arrests.

"Innocent people may be injured," said the attorney-general. "A mob asks no questions."

"A cooling-off period is needed,"

Sweeping Reorganization Sought In Military Might

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy called on Congress today to beef up the military, strengthen foreign aid, attack unemployment and pump $7,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 into rocketing a man to the moon.

His requests were made in an extraordinary message — a second report on the state of the union, for delivery in person before a joint Senate-House session, almost on the eve of the departure for conferences abroad.

Kennedy asked for $1,500,000,000 in new appropriations now to get on with his programs plus a recognition from Congress and the country that billions more will be required in the future.

Speaking of the objective of "landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth," a project some experts believe may require nine or 10 years, the President said:

"Let it be clear that I am asking the Congress and the country to accept a firm commitment to a new course of action—a course which will last for many years and carry very heavy costs—an estimated $7,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 additional over the next five years. If we were to go only half way, or reduce our sights in the face of difficulty, it would be better not to go at all."

The message called for a sweeping reorganization of military combat power, an increase in the marine corps, and a build-up of the land and air weapons needed for brush fire wars and para-military (guerrilla) operations.

The President committed the U.S. to take "a clearly leading role in space achievement."

"For while we cannot guarantee that we shall one day be first, we can guarantee that any future to share this effort will make us last," the President said.

Kennedy asked $679,000,000 of new funds for space exploration, including $31,000,000 for the moon project.

He asked $535,000,000 of new foreign aid funds, shared about equally between military and economic assistance.

The economic portion, $250,000,000, would go into a presidential contingency fund, he said, to be used only upon the president's finding that a sudden and extraordinary drain on the regular funds made necessary the use of this emergency reserve.

The need for such funds, he said has been "illustrated by recent events in Southeast Asia."

The total foreign economic aid program, to be boosted $2,650,000,000 if Congress accepts the new presidential recommendations, is "both minimal and crucial," Kennedy said.

His message called also for a step-up in the Voice of America and related programs, bringing the U.S. Information Agency budget to more than $121,000,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He gave notice, also, that he would ask for a new law to strengthen the Federal Bureau of Investigation's power to collect information preparatory to setting up an espionage ring.

Mr. Mikoyan said this was a serious case and Judge Shorteno had dismissed the charges on a point of law.

The preferred indictment will put Biernacki directly on trial after he is arraigned, doing away with preliminary hearing.

The new indictment was announced by special Crown prosecutor Jean Miquelon seconds after Judge Peter Shorteno finished reading a 33-page judgment in Biernacki's six-week preliminary hearing dismissing the charges.

The new indictment lists the same charges that were dismissed — collecting and recording information that might be harmful to Canada; attempting to communicate this information to a foreign power; and attempting to collect information preparatory to setting up an espionage ring.

Gagliardi Accuses Green Of 'Dereliction Of Duty'

VICTORIA (CP) — Highway Minister Gagliardi Wednesday night charged External Affairs Minister Howard Green with "dereliction of duty" for leaving the Geneva conference on Laos to take part in the May 29 Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election.

The British Columbia minister made the charge at one of the liveliest meetings held for Social Credit candidate George Hahn. More than 100 persons cheered speeches by Mr. Hahn, Mr. Gagliardi, Education Minister Peterson and John Tisdale, Saanich member of the provincial legislature.

Frequently interrupted by cheers Mr. Gagliardi said he was amazed and flabbergasted Mr. Green would "fly all the way from a critically-important international conference to take part in a minor by-election."

"I call this dereliction of duty. Canada would be better served if these people would stick to their places of duty instead of rattling across the country purely to confuse the issues here."

"It is no wonder that a responsible Vancouver newspaper demands his resignation. They want to corral all the seats in the house. . . . They are so afraid of this fellow Hahn they are sending out their entire cabinet."

Seven Year Itch Starts Next Week

VERNON (Staff)—A humorous crisis in a man's life is the subject of the final play of the year of the Vernon Little Theatre Association.

This is the Seven Year Itch, which will run Monday through Wednesday in the Senior High School Auditorium starting at 8 p.m.

It will be the sixth production of the Little Theatre group this season, which has included two three-act plays, a Christmas pageant, and three one-act plays for the regional drama festival.

The play is restricted to adults.

The George Axelrod story is set in a New York apartment, and is centred around a man, his wife, the "woman" upstairs, and a psychiatrist.

Lead roles are being performed by Drew Allen and his wife, Pamela, as the man and wife; Rosalie Gower, as the other woman; Blair Jackson, as the psychiatrist, and his daughter Suzi, as the quizzical little girl.

The play had a long run on Broadway and was made into a movie starring Marilyn Monroe.

The title refers to the proverbial danger point in a marriage. Arlie Sitaw is the director.

VALLEY REPORT

Cherry Gets To Market Ahead Of Other Crops

First of all the tree fruits to reach the market each year is the cherry, and the variety known best throughout all of Western Canada and indeed, the Pacific North Western States, is the Bing. This is stated in B.C. Tree Fruits weekly report.

The Bing variety was originated in Oregon in 1875 by Seth Lewelling, an orchardist there. It is an open pollinated seedling of the Black Republican variety, and was discovered with the help of one of Lewelling's Chinese employees, a man named Bing. Lewelling named the new Cherry in Bing's honor. From Oregon, the variety spread throughout all of the North West, and into British Columbia, where it has been widely planted since the beginning of fruit growing here.

Although the Bing has been the backbone of the cherry industry here for many years, it, in common with other varieties of sweet cherries, cannot withstand cold winters. During the winter of 1949-50, the most severe on record in the Okanagan, many of the old Bing trees were killed out and many more so severely damaged that they have never fully recovered. Again in 1955, another tree-killing winter, many of the remaining Bing trees were either lost or permanently damaged, and many of the young trees planted in 1950 as replacements were also killed.

CLOSE BLOWS
Those two winters, coming so close together, enabled horticulturists to compare the ability of each variety to withstand the rigors of extreme cold, and led them to the conclusion that the Bing grown under B.C. conditions is more tender than some other varieties, and that, although the Bing is, at least one other variety affords the orchardist a better chance.

That other variety is Lambert. It, too, was originated in Oregon by Seth Lewelling. It is a cross between a Royal Anne and Black Heart, both of which are very old varieties. Although Lambert suffered during the killing 1949 and 1955 winters too, it was not so severely hurt as was Bing, and growers during the years since the freezes, have planted more Lamberts than Bings—especially in the Central and Northern parts of the Valley.

In 1960, the year of the latest tree census, there were 36,000 Bing trees of all ages in Okanagan and Similkameen Valleys; 64 per cent of them have been planted since the 1949 freeze and are ten years of age or less. In 1960 there were 75,000

Lambert trees growing in the orchards, 75 per cent of them ten years old or younger. Provided another killing winter does not again cause severe damage to cherry orchards, the crop prospects for future years would seem to be ample.

The variety committee of the Okanagan Agricultural Club and B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. together recommended to the B.C.F.A. convention last January that there be no further planting of sweet cherries, except where pollenizers are necessary.

Last year, the fruit industry set aside one week in the early summer to be known as Okanagan Sun-Ripe Week. It was featured by special advertising and promotion in an effort to bring home to everyone in the Valley some knowledge and appreciation of the value of the processing branch of fruit growing, and of the many and varied products made available to the public by the industry's own plant.

Following the success of that first effort, the plan will be repeated this year during the week of May 29 to June 3.

Special advertisements will be carried by the Valley newspapers, radio and television during that week, and news stories, editorial comment and cooking schools will feature Sun-Ripe products and their story.

Senior Band Plays For Patients

CONTRIBUTED

Conducted by G. A. R. McKinley, Kelowna's Senior City Band, presented a program of music for patients in Kelowna General Hospital Tuesday.

Selections ranging from that well-known favorite, Colonel Bogey March, to Wonderful By Night were enjoyed by patients, their visitors and the public as well as the hospital staff.

According to one grateful and tired staff member, the music solved a major problem of how to X-ray one battling little boy who immediately became quite docile on hearing the band.

The beautiful setting of the hospital lawn enhanced the new cadet style, maroon colored uniforms with white trim and white Sam Brown belts recently purchased by the band.

Under the training and direction of Mr. McKinley for the past few years, Kelowna now has a band of which it can be justifiably proud, a hospital spokesman said.

At the close of the concert, lemonade was provided by the hospital staff, and was appreciated by all band members.

Villeneuve was in the news recently when he rode his disabled Sabre to the ground rather than ejecting and permitting the jet to crash in a populated area. He has become well-known over the past two years as the leader of the RCAF's "Golden Hawks" aerobatic team. The Hawks are tentatively scheduled to perform in Kelowna during Regatta.

Little Theatre Urgently In Need Of New Recruits

Kelowna Little Theatre will advance Little Theatre into a much more vital and active group. This means more productions and more real advertising, new people to replace the many dropping out and experiment with different vehicles of expression.

Returned to KLT presidency for her second term, Mrs. Mary Sinden said last night that KLT is in a state of "having to climb again."

She recommended "do as we have done in the past: advertise, advertise, get known, be a name in people's minds, have activities."

New blood is needed to keep KLT's wheels moving.

Mrs. Sinden said it is time for "an entirely new club, new vitality, new ideas."

"If we are enthusiastic we will draw other people to us."

Also at the annual meeting last night, vice-president M. R. "Mike" Hawkins was elected. Secretary for the coming term is Ruby Jessop, and treasurer, Nancy Gale.

Directors are Delys Shotton, Len Martin, Una Hughes and Hugh Bernau.

BRIGHTER
Kelowna Little Theatre's two three-act productions this year, along with rentals for the KLT building, saw the financial picture somewhat brighter than the previous year. Net profit for the year was $289.34.

Plans for the coming year include mainly the attempt.

Angus Pierre and Henry Pierre, $15 and costs each for being intoxicated in a public place.

Byelection Voters Asked To Sign A Blank Cheque

The vital business of the nation is revealed once a year in the government's budget. All the government's record in the past year, all its intentions for the future, are published in that document. The budget is generally brought down in the House of Commons in March or April, as the new governmental year starts on April 1.

It does generally, that is. This year, however, there are four byelections being fought on May 29th and the budget will not be presented until after the byelections. Obviously there is a connection between the two and it must be assumed, therefore, that the forthcoming budget must be a most fearsome document indeed.

When the government is on trial at four simultaneous national byelections, a broad cross-section of the nation, the voters in these four areas surely have a right to expect a accounting of their business. Without that accounting, they are being asked to vote blind; to take the government on faith alone and to learn the sad facts of life later.

There can be only one reason for the delay in presenting the budget. It is going to be so bad that the government fears the information may affect the voters adversely—for it. Had been a "good news budget," there is no doubt whatsoever that it would have been brought down at the normal time, even hurried up a little to win additional support for the four government candidates. But it is being delayed—unnecessarily so; so the news must be bad indeed.

The budget will probably reveal a thumping deficit of somewhere around $700 million. Does this mean new taxes? If so, here is the answer for the delay in withholding budget information until after the four byelections. Or will there be a reduction in taxes in preparation for a general election or are they being left unchanged? Either way, the resulting huge budgetary deficits of the next year would be enough to frighten enough voters to bring about the defeat of the government candidates.

The delay in bringing down the budget not only affects the voters of the four byelections who are thus asked to take the government on faith alone; it also places the Commons in an embarrassing position of approving many policies without adequate knowledge of how those policies fit in the whole framework of government policy.

The government, we think, has made a mistake; it has shown a callous disregard of the rights of the Canadian people. Whether or not this will affect the vote in the four byelections we will know on May 29 when the voters are being asked to vote without knowledge, to render a verdict without evidence, to sign a blank cheque, to vote now and pay later.

Few Communists In Jamaica

"Undoubtedly the strongest two-party system in the West Indies and far superior than anything on the whole continent of Africa today."

That is how a veteran observer of the political scene at Kingston describes Jamaica's democratic government. And the history of general elections since the first in 1944 bears him out.

Jamaica's two established political parties are the Peoples National Party, currently in power under the leadership of Premier Norman W. Manley, and the Jamaican Labor Party, which held power from 1944 to 1955.

The recent nip-and-tuck election battle between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon in the United States raised few eyebrows there, because Jamaicans are accustomed to hard fought and frequently closely contested general election campaigns, which are held every five years. In 1949, for example, the Peoples National Party got 43.5 per cent of the popular vote as compared to 42.7 for the Labor Party, but the Labor Party remained in power by capturing 17 seats in the House of Representatives as compared to PNP's 13.

Like Britain and the United States, the central government of Jamaica consists basically of two legislative bodies (the House of Representatives and the Legislative Council) plus the premier and his cabinet and assorted administrative agencies.

Unlike the U.S., however, the Legislative Council of 21 members is appointed by the Governor after consultation with both the leader of the party in power and the leader of the opposition party. House members, now numbering 45, are elected from districts. Again unlike the U.S., the premier's cabinet (ministers of finance, communications, etc.) are selected from the people elected to the House, rather than being appointed independently of election results. The premier also selects two members of the Legislative Council to serve in the cabinet as ministers without portfolio.

There is no Communist party in Jamaica and no candidate for public office has ever run as a Communist. The probability of Communist infiltration in the island's political system is extremely remote, as shown by the fortunes of the few "independent" parties which have entered the contest for ballots over recent years.

Entering only district races, various independent groups have received less than one per cent of the votes in many instances and their vote getting ability has been on the decline.

More Jamaicans are going to the polls at each general election. They qualify if they are 21 and registered, and no literacy test is involved. In 1944, 399,000 of the 633,000 eligible voters cast their ballots and in 1959, 564,000 voted, or 66.9 per cent of those eligible.

The big political issue on the island today is whether or not Jamaica should remain in the Federation of the West Indies, a federal government scheduled for complete self-rule.

Premier Manley and his Peoples National Party followers want Jamaica in the Federation. The Labor Party has taken a flat stand against Jamaica's membership in the Federation, claiming that the economic and political progress being made here would be slowed up while a federal government sought to have less progressive member countries catch up to Jamaica. They also maintain that membership in the federal government would result in a heavier tax burden on Jamaicans.

Supporters of federation maintain that, in the long run, all member governments could be run more efficiently and with less cost through the elimination of duplicating functions such as customs, ministries of agriculture, labor, education, etc.

Manley has committed himself and his party to settlement of the question through a referendum which will be held following other conferences on the basic federation status as a completely independent government. The outcome of the Jamaican referendum could have great influence on the future of the island and its neighbors and also upon the political future of those engaged in the debate.

Saanich Byelection A Vigorous Affair

By TOM WATT
Canadian Press Staff Writer
VICTORIA (CP) — The May 29 Saanich byelection is being hailed by all candidates as a political barometer for Canada.

It is the only one of the four byelections scheduled across Canada on that date, being contested by all the major parties—and so far it has been a vigorous and colorful campaign.

The top brass of all the parties have lent gleam to their candidates and the spotlight is constantly shifting from a cabinet minister to an opposition critic and back again.

The candidates are building their platforms with local, provincial, national and international plans.

The Esquimalt-Saanich seat became vacant last October when Gen. George Pearkes resigned as defence minister to become British Columbia's lieutenant-governor.

He had held the seat since 1915. In the 1958 federal election, he polled 18,000 votes to win the 38,000-vote riding by 13,000-votes over the CCF candidate.

nearby Saanich, is the Progressive Conservative candidate. The 45-year-old South African-born Chatterton is emphasizing local issues—saying national policy is the big thing only in a general election.

Liberal entry is David Groos, 43, a retired naval officer who commanded a destroyer during the Second World War. He was born in Milwaukee, Wis., of English parents and was brought to Canada as a youngster.

Mr. Groos' main argument is against Canada's "entry into the nuclear club" and increased trade among Atlantic nations.

The New Party is after its first seat in B.C. and Glen Hamilton, 41, is carrying its banner. He is a professional social worker who runs an 11-acre farm on the side.

"MAN WHO CARES" — Mr. Hamilton is being billed as "the man who cares." The reference is to his position on the executive of the Silver Threads, a social organization for elderly citizens.

Mr. Hamilton is advocating a national crash program to alleviate unemployment. He has plans also for several local improvements.

George Hahn, 40, the Social Credit entry, is the only candidate with previous experience in Ottawa. He was twice elected member of Parliament for New Westminster.

His campaign is getting the strong support of B.C.'s Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his cabinet.

TRYING TO CUSHION THE FALL

S. Africa Rapidly Becomes 'Most Unwanted Country'

Editor's note: Brian Barrow is a South African journalist long experienced in reporting on the problems of his country. In this story he discusses the growing tension as the Union prepares to become a republic May 31.

By BRIAN BARROW
CAPE TOWN (CP) — The president has been elected. Royal insignia are being stripped from courtyards and public buildings. Even royal monograms on the governor-general's teaspoons are being removed. Everywhere the last tangible links with the Crown and the Commonwealth are being severed and South Africa finds herself, as if in a nightmare, becoming the world's most unwanted, isolated and jittery republic.

As May 31 approaches even the Nationalists must be having their doubts, although Prime Minister Verwoerd and his more extreme supporters, are more starchy-eyed and more remote from the realities of the situation than ever. By some incredible feat of self-deception they think that everything is rosy in their garden of apartheid.

Meanwhile, capital is leaving the country, gold shares drop, business is bad, shops are comparatively empty. Men are leaving in alarming numbers — doctors, specialists, university professors, scientists, businessmen, technicians. External pressure is increasing. The whites are more divided among themselves.

UNREST BOILS
Unrest among the non-whites is boiling up to heaven knows what.

The plan nation-wide strikes and demonstrations to coincide with republican day.

For the first time ever, the Colored people whose hopes for a new deal was crushed recently by Verwoerd, will join the strikes in thousands in sympathy with the Africans.

Meanwhile, a series of parliamentary by-elections has shown that voters and more whites are being stampeded into the Nationalist camp. The gap between white and non-white is wider and more dangerous than ever.

Almost overnight events here have shifted from the sphere of electoral appeals and sane parliamentary government into the field of naked power. To the laws have become irrelevant. To the Nationalist government, Parliament has become an instrument for entrenching white domination.

In these last sad days of monarchy the government has set the future pattern for the republic. Bannings of non-Communists under the Suppression of Communism Act have become more frequent. There have been country-wide "route" police raids on offices and private homes to uncover information about threatened strikes May 31.

Justice Minister Erasmus has fathered a law giving him emergency powers without having to declare an emergency. He can lock up anyone for 12 days without charge, without bail, without trial.

The defence force has been enlarged and transformed into an auxiliary police force to ensure internal security.

White security battalions are to replace African guards at airfields, munition dumps and sundry depots.

Tension grows daily among whites. Thousands are buying stocks of tinned food and fuel. There has been a rush to buy firearms. In many city areas whites are organizing themselves into groups of vigilantes to patrol the streets at night in case of trouble.

Everywhere, everyone is asking the same question: What will the Africans do May 31? This has superseded the coming of the republic as the most vital issue of the day. Whatever happens, the republic will be ushered in on a wave of anxiety and fear.

The government must of course, maintain law and order. Strongarm measures are being taken. The police are launching raids on African locations near Cape Town and rounding up "loiterers and idlers" and anyone found in streets or on premises in a suspicious circumstances. Hundreds are being questioned and scores of arrests are being made.

By May 31 feelings will be such that the smallest incident could scar the new republic with another Sharpeville or worse, on the day of its birth.

RECORD TONNAGE
NANAIMO (CP) — The Vancouver Island Vegetable Cooperative Association, in annual meeting, reported at the weekend the tonnage of potatoes and other vegetables produced on the island is the highest ever—6,838 tons. VANCOUVER (CP) — CNR'S S.S. Prince George left here Tuesday to inaugurate her 14th season of summer cruises to Alaska since she was built in 1948. The 5,800-ton vessel has about 200 passengers aboard. She will make 13 cruises between Vancouver and Skagway this year.

HELP IN MINING
The map may have wide application in the mining field, in the government's access — road program and in schemes for rural redevelopment and better land use.

The work resulting in the map was done by Dr. Norman W. Radford of McMaster University. It is a million, perhaps the greatest authority in his field in the world. He has been working under contract for the Defence Research Board since 1949.

The map portrays high, medium and low frequency of occurrence of muskeg throughout Canada. It also gives the type of cover in each area. Regions are lettered and the letters correspond with photographs of the appropriate kinds of cover in an accompanying folder.

For example, northwestern Manitoba is lettered AEI. In the folder of photographs; AEI is shown to be open forest with trees well spaced.

Because muskeg regions of Canada are analogous to similar regions in other parts of the world, such as the Soviet Union, the British and U.S. military have shown interest in Dr. Radford's work.

Dr. Radford compiled the map after scanning thousands of aerial photographs of Canada's terrain. He now is working on measurement of the water content in muskeg.

Airmen Get Ready In Case Of War

By M. McINTYRE HOOD
Special to The Daily Courier

DECIMOMANNU, Sardinia — On this rugged old-world island of Sardinia, in the Mediterranean, Canadian airmen are becoming proficient in their use of the weapons they would have to use in the event of an outbreak of hostilities in Europe. Here is located the NATO air weapons training and practice installation. It is, in fact, the "shooting gallery" for Canada's NATO Air Division in Europe.

In crowded Europe, it has not been easy to establish ranges for the live firing of machine guns and rockets. So, in a continuing exercise, all of Canada's 12 jet squadrons, based in four stations in France and West Germany, each spend from one to three weeks live firing practice. Each squadron comes to "Deci" as they call this station, twice a year. They make the most of their visits, for nowhere else are they able to carry out regular practice firing with live guns and rockets.

THREE-TIME WINNERS
Evidence of the value of this training is seen in the results of the annual Guyanmer Trophy Competition, symbolic of the European air-to-air gunnery championship. The RCAF air division has won the trophy for three successive years, against stiff competition from other European air forces and American NATO-assigned air elements.

Here at Decimomannu, there is a permanent Canadian establishment. It is made up of 65 officers and airmen. Its job is to provide the many services and facilities that the individual Canadian squadrons cannot economically bring with them.

TRI-NATIONAL STATION
Since November of 1960, the station has been tri-national in character. At that time the German Air Force began to use it to carry out live weapons training practice. The Italian Air Force also has a base here, and the Canadians have been using it since 1957.

The Decimomannu base lies 15 miles from Cagliari, a picturesque city of 180,000 that was ancient when Rome was new. Most of the island is rugged and hilly, but the base, at the south end of Sardinia, lies in a broad, flat valley that extends into the interior. As the Canadian jets take off, they fly over small villages where life has changed little in the last several hundred years.

Air firing is done over the blue waters of the Mediterranean. The range lying off the west coast of the island, is some 120 miles long by 40 miles broad. In this the single-seater Sabres, scheduled soon to be replaced by the new supersonic CF-104 fire their six machine guns at "banners" towed behind another Sabre.

The 65 officers and airmen of the RCAF unit staff spend two years here if they are married and have their families with them, and one and half years if they are single. The unit is housed in several small concrete block and brick buildings. The personnel of the permanent unit all live off the base, in rented accommodations. Most are married and live with their families in the Poetto district, adjoining a long sandy beach just outside Cagliari.

The city is picturesque. Ancient ramparts and towers surround it. Throughout its area are found clematis, banana plants, palms, olives and other shrubs which provide an exotic atmosphere. To a newly-arrived Canadian, the city is exotic, exciting and interesting. To the RCAF staff stationed here, however, I am told it offers little in the way of entertainment or recreation once its sight-seeing possibilities have been exhausted, and its exotic appeal wears off. Swimming has become the favorite recreation of all the Canadians stationed here.

FEW AMENITIES
The Canadians have their own grocery store on the station, with reasonably good stocks, but no PX, so housewives do a lot of shopping in Cagliari, but find items common in Canada either unobtainable or very expensive.

Little reading material in English is available. Personnel depend on the Daily American, a small English tabloid newspaper published in Rome, for news.

The roads are terrible, so motoring is no pleasure.

Relations with the Sardinians are excellent but owing to Sardinian social customs, general integration is very difficult, if not impossible.

CANADIAN SCHOOL

The RCAF community boasts probably the only Canadian school with palm trees and banana plants growing in its playground. It is a school operated by the department of national defence for the Canadian children. It was opened in the fall of 1958 with 12 pupils, but now it has an enrollment of 40, ranging from grades one to eight. They occupy two classrooms, in a modern Italian school in downtown Cagliari.

In charge of the school is Mrs. Kenneth Allen, both a graduate of the University of Alberta. Mr. Allen is principal and his wife teaches primary grades. The other teacher is Miss Neola Martin, from Rosemount, Quebec, who came to Sardinia after teaching in the Canadian Army Brigade at Soest, West Germany. The children are given a thoroughly Canadian education, but their teachers have taken advantage of opportunities to give the children something of the history, customs and culture of the island, by visits to historic places.

Hungarian Students End Story Of Flight

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The story of a modern exodus that began 4½ years ago in the bloody Hungarian uprising against Communist rule ends today on the green lawns of the University of British Columbia.

In the graduating class will be the last 23 students of the Hungarian Sopron forestry faculty who fled their homeland in 1957.

Little Sopron, as it has been called, will close its doors forever, ending the tale of a modern-day flight to freedom by an entire school.

The story began in November, 1956, when Sopron students and professors joined freedom fighters in the Hungarian revolt. When Soviet tanks rolled into the country in force to put a bloody end to the uprising, the students joined others taking flight to Austria and then, with Canadian aid, to Canada.

With graduation of its last students, including a number of women, Sopron will have turned out 130 graduates since the original 196 students and 29 professors re-established the 150-year-old school at UBC in 1957.

Some others quit because of study or financial difficulties. Some went into other UBC faculties. A number, including several women, got married and drifted into outside jobs.

Eight returned to Hungary. Dean Kalman Roller, a short, quiet-spoken man who led the faculty here, said there is still a Sopron University in Hungary but it knows little of Canadian freedoms; its students are picked and directed and its graduates funnelled without choice into the state-run forest industry.

He said the group has been happy in Canada.

"Our exodus will be written on the pages of history to provide an example and inspiration to future generations. Canada's reception of these refugees will everlastingly remain a bright page in her history. It is an immensely positive contribution to the whole of humanity."

The dean, with several other professors, is staying at UBC as a teacher-researcher in forestry and has two sons taking chemistry courses there.

Asked why eight chose to go back behind the Iron Curtain, the dean said: "Perhaps their parents called them back because of illness or other difficulties."

George Allen, UBC dean of forestry, added: "We cannot tell how much pressure may have been put on the old folks. Many of the students still have relatives in Hungary."

Dean Allen said the Sopron experiment was a big success, with close to 90 per cent of the original student body graduated despite language problems and the difficulties of financing fees of about $270 a year per student.

Of these previously graduated, 90 have forestry jobs of one kind or another in British Columbia, some doing manual labor in sawmills and as woods loggers waiting for something better.

Sixteen are taking post-graduate study at UBC. Two are on scholarships at Yale and the University of Washington and four are in line for National Research Council scholarships this year.

Only four of the 29 original professors remain. Some have found other teaching jobs at UBC and other universities in Canada. Some are doing research with private firms. Two middle-age professors made a complete change and became storekeepers.

Many Sopron students come to UBC expecting a free education but got only the $65-a-month subsistence paid to all Hungarian refugees. Dean Allen said they accepted this philanthropically, borrowing money from the university and taking odd jobs. Many still owe debts of several hundred dollars. Some quit because they didn't want to go into debt.

But, the dean added, the majority agreed they were well-treated and decided "the opportunity of a good living in a free country was worth a few hundred dollars of debt."

The federal government has contributed more than $500,000, including $100,000 in transportation costs. Additional money was provided by UBC and other sources to make up salaries of Sopron professors and to pay other expenses.

When the Sopron refugees arrived they were housed in a tented construction camp at Powell River, north of Vancouver. When they moved to the UBC campus they were given quarters in weatherbeaten army huts.

COSTUME CO-ORDINATES

By ALICE ALDEN
The three-piece coordinate in knitted wool is so becoming and so versatile that it is rapidly turning into a leading fashion way of life for the on-the-go American woman. This model is an airy, textured knitted wool and it buttons up a collarless jacket over a matching slim skirt and a brightly striped blouse. The springy American wool resists wrinkle and is wonderful for both wear and suitcase. Pretty in a jade green combination or in gold with an orange and white striped blouse.

Batik Work Is Being Shown In Kelowna Library

By SAKULIKA

The exhibition being shown in the library board room this week is Batik work, and might come more under the heading of a craft, though Batik work is perhaps one of the world's most ancient arts.

The origin is lost in the dim dawn of history, as is a great deal of the history of the Pacific Islands. Java was the home of this remarkable work.

There is a book in the library which will explain how it is done, a process too long to describe in this column. Sufficient to say that a special cup-like instrument is used, something like a feeding cup, to pour wax on the design. Then the material is dyed and when it is dry the wax is removed. The same waxing process is used to further the design, and the dyeing is repeated. The result is a piece of material of very rich and often of dark coloring. The original oriental designs are very beautiful and complicated. Though the colorings are lovely in the recent collection the large designs have not the same appeal. As wall coverings there are many unique and very rich in coloring, and modern, even abstract, in composition. The artist is the well known B.C. artist Cliff Robinson.

Jackson Carries Cards In 7-2 Slap At Dodgers

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Right hander Larry Jackson, a slow starter at the best of times, overcame a spring training injury and a three game losing streak Wednesday night as St. Louis Cardinals knocked Los Angeles Dodgers out of second place in the National League.

Jackson was put out of action this spring when his jaw was fractured by a broken bat swung by Duke Snider of the Dodgers in an exhibition game. That sidelined him the first two weeks of the season. When he did come back, Jackson lost three in a row.

He finally made it Wednesday night with a 7-2 victory over Los Angeles.

San Francisco added its lead to a full game with a 5-4 victory at Cincinnati while Pittsburgh Pirates took over second place by beating Chicago Cubs 7-3. Last place Philadelphia beat Milwaukee 7-1.

GAVE EIGHT HITS
Jackson, now 15-6 lifetime against the Dodgers, gave up eight hits and seven walks, but left a dozen Dodgers stranded. Relief ace Lindy McDaniel finally nailed it, striking out Tommy Davis with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Willie Davis drove in both Dodger runs, one with a homer. The sixth-place Cards, winning their second in a row, scored once in the first on Bill White's home run and then beat Roger Craig (1-3) with two in the second on singles by Stan Musial, Daryl Spencer and Al Grammas and a force out by Hal Smith. Jackson doubled home two more in the sixth.

Winner Mike McCormick (5-2) of the Giants and the Reds' Jim O'Toole (4-4), a pair of young southpaws, duelled through six scoreless innings before San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the seventh. The Giants wrapped it up with two more in the eighth, one unearned, with Jim Davenport's sacrifice fly counting the clincher. Frank Robinson homered in the seventh for the Reds and Vada Pinson tagged a three-run homer in the eighth off McCormick before reliever Bob Bolin saved it.

BEAT THE BRAVES
Art Mahaffey (5-3) beat the Braves with a four-hitter. It was the seventh complete game—tops in the majors—in eight starts for the young right hander who claims all but three of the Phil's eight victories in their last 21 games. Jim Wood's and Charlie Smith hammered homers for Philadelphia, with Smith's two-on shot triggering a six-run fourth that beat Don Notbart (2-3).

Clem Labine mopped up with a perfect 2-13 innings of relief.

Angels Find $50,000 Cheque

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Angels and the New York Yankees can balance their bank books today with what was a missing $50,000 cheque.

It was disclosed that the Angels' treasurer, Francis N. Leary, had a countably lost the cheque, made out to the Angels and non-negotiable, while attending a Los Angeles Dodger-Milwaukee game in Memorial Coliseum here May 15.

A youthful fan found it and sent it back to the Angels.

General manager Fred Haney of the Los Angeles club, quite unperturbed about it, said the cheque was a routine bookkeeping deal which involved the recent player swap with New York which sent Bob Cerv and Tex Clevenger to the Yankees for Ryne Duren and other players.

CAHA Ties Loose Ends After Three Days Work

By CHARLES GERLIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's annual meeting tied up loose ends today following three days of heavy business sessions.

However, applications for next winter's world hockey tournament, along with such items as Allan Cup receipts, reports on minor hockey and the European tour by the world champion Trail Smoke Eaters were expected to keep the meeting busy most of the day.

Delegates dealt with 144 resolutions on regulations, rules, by-laws and general matters during the meeting, with the result that amateur hockey in Western Canada underwent a certain amount of facelifting. The East was relatively unaffected by adopted changes.

Regulations for playoff hockey were in the spotlight Wednesday as the association adopted resolutions aimed at giving some junior clubs more of a fighting chance in playoffs.

The main impact was felt by the Prairie provinces as the CAHA moved to strengthen Thunder Bay and British Columbia playoff hopes in Memorial Cup playoffs.

Alberta and Saskatchewan lost a source of free junior player material as the introduction of junior A hockey to B.C. prompted the CAHA to place that province under the same import-restriction regulation governing the rest of Canada.

Each junior A team is restricted to two imports from another CAHA branch.

Saskatchewan and Alberta teams no longer will be permitted to pick up three players from their own branches when they meet in inter-branch Memorial Cup playoffs.

The Alberta-Saskatchewan winner is allowed to pick up three players only if its meets Manitoba in the western final, but none if it meets Thunder Bay. The Manitoba champion is allowed three additions for the western final, but not for inter-branch playoffs against the Thunder Bay representative.

SIXTH STRAIGHT
BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP)—Eddie Cotton, Seattle light heavyweight, won his sixth straight victory Wednesday night when he knocked out Neal Rivers at 1:55 in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round fight. Rivers, a pound lighter than his opponent at 168½, was floored for the mandatory eight count early in the sixth. He fought back stubbornly but Cotton put him away with a right to the body. It was cotton's 24th knockout win and brought his record to 44-11-1.

UPSET CHAMPS
VANCOUVER (CP)—Big Art Hughes served notice to Bellingham City manager Gil Merrick Wednesday night he'll be out for goals when British Columbia's all-stars meet the English team here June 10. Hughes led Vancouver Firefighters to a 3-1 triumph over 1960 Canadian champion Westminster Royals Wednesday night in Province cup competition. Sunday the two clubs fought to a 3-3 overtime tie. Firefighters now ad-

ALLOWED REPLACEMENTS
Thunder Bay is allowed three replacements for the series against Manitoba and B.C. six against Alberta.

The western Memorial Cup representative still is permitted a maximum of six pickups, three from within the team's own CAHA branch and three from elsewhere in the West.

Two teams without a junior league in which to play, Edmonton Oil Kings and the Montreal-sponsored Junior Canadiens, will be allowed to continue competing for the Memorial Cup.

The CAHA referred to its playoff committee a Manitoba proposal that senior and junior playoffs be advanced to earlier dates to avoid conflict with televised National Hockey League playoffs, which have taken a slice out of amateur playoff attendance in the West.

BASEBALL STARS

Pitching: Art Mahaffey, Philadelphia Phillies, beat Milwaukee Braves, 7-1 with a four-hitter, striking out five men and walking three for his seventh complete game, top total in the majors, in eight starts.

Hitting: Ron Hanson, Baltimore Orioles, overhauled a Chicago White Sox lead with a three-run homer in the eighth inning for a 5-3 victory and doubleheader sweep after a tie-breaking home run by Gus Triandos won the first game 2-1.

Some observers have suggested Mays lacks just one quality—leadership. But Dark, the Giants' shortstop when Willie broke in and his manager today, doesn't agree.

HAS ABILITY
"He's definitely a leader. There's no substitute for ability. Willie's greatest leadership quality is his ability."

Durocher, who managed the Giants when Willie came up and now is a coach with Los Angeles Dodgers, says:

"I said the same thing today that I said the day he came up—he's the greatest player in baseball. He's more matured today but Mays isn't doing anything today he couldn't do 10 years ago."

Mays has won many honors. He's a cinch to be named to the 1961 National League all-star team for the eighth time.

He has led the major leagues in batting (.345 in 1954), in home runs (51 in 1955) and is the most exciting base runner in the game.

Last month he hit four homers in a game at Milwaukee, the ninth player in baseball history to accomplish the feat.

Mays is the only Giant left in a game at Milwaukee, the 1951 team that won the National League pennant in a thrilling playoff with the then Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Everybody helped me," he said. "That's why I was lucky. Leo Durocher, Alvin Dark, Eddie Stanky, oh, a lotta guys. I wanted to learn and I'm still learning."

Yesterday's Cryptogram: WHY SHOULD A MAN CERTAIN OF IMMORTALITY THINK OF HIS LIFE AT ALL? — CONRAD.

When Your Heart Fails

By RUFON H. FERN, M.D.

How long can you live with heart failure? Possibly years! Heart failure simply means failure to pump all the blood needed. Even healthy hearts fail if they're forced beyond their limit.

Actually, you have two hearts working side by side. One receives blue "used" blood and pumps it to the lungs. From the lungs, rich red blood flows into the other to be pumped to all parts of the body.

Either heart may fail first, but eventually both tucker out. If the heart—which pumps fresh blood throughout the body—fails, rich red blood is dammed back into large veins in the lungs. Kidneys slow down and salt and water swell the circulation.

LIKE HIGHWAYS

Meanwhile, blue blood is still being pumped into the lungs. Here, bulging arteries and veins resemble highways with bumper-to-bumper traffic.

You can't catch your breath. Exercise makes you pant. One flight of stairs seems like climbing Mt. Everest heights.

The congestion increases when you lie flat and so you may have to sleep sitting up. Bluish veins bulge throughout the rest of the body when the other heart fails. Salty fluid soon swells liver, legs and abdomen. Overnight, gravity shifts the swelling to your back and so shoes that fit in the morning are too small by afternoon.

Heart failure can often be controlled or cured.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

You may cure yourself by cutting down on pretzels, ham and other salty foods. Your doctor may prescribe pills to flush salt through the kidneys. Digitalis-like drugs can give your heart a new force.

Yes, you can live with heart failure—often for years! If you're overweight, cut calories and paste a poison label on that salt shaker.

Eat sensibly. You don't want to eat your heart out!

The bidding:
1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

In a great many hands the declarer has no way of knowing at the start whether he will make his contract. This is largely because he does not know how the defenders' cards are divided.

In some hands he has to depend entirely on the whims of Lady Luck. If the cards are well placed, he makes his contract; if they are not, he goes down. These hands are not the kind you worry about; there is nothing you can do about them when they occur.

The hands that are supposed to bother you are those where you can make the contract even though the distribution is unfavorable. These are the hands that test your skill and the ones that are the most interesting to play.

For example, take this hand. There are no spades, heart or club losers, so everything depends upon losing only one diamond trick.

Obviously, if the diamonds are divided 2-2, you can make the contract simply by leading the ace and another diamond.

But since this method will fail if there is a 3-1 division, which occurs about 50 per cent of the time, the question is whether anything can be done to overcome a 3-1 break if it exists.

The answer is that declarer can cope with a 3-1 division provided certain other favorable conditions exist. Here is how declarer takes steps to protect against an uneven distribution of the diamonds.

He wins the spade lead with the ace and draws two rounds of trumps. Then he cashes the king of spades, discarding a diamond, and ruffs a spade. He next plays the A-K of clubs and ruffs a club.

Now he leads a diamond and ducks in dummy. In the actual case, West wins with the queen (East cannot afford to overtake) and must give South a ruff and discard.

Note that the elimination play would likewise succeed if West had the singleton king or jack, and would also succeed if East held the singleton king, queen or jack.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

Restrictive influences of the past couple of days lift somewhat now, so you should have smoother sailing in most endeavors. Some situations which have been "hanging fire" for a time could also be happily solved under present configurations.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that you are lucky, indeed.

According to the stars, there are five months within the next 12 which stand out as better-than-excellent for job, business and monetary affairs. These are July, October, November, December and February. Do take advantage of all opportunities available then to forge ahead, since the intermediate periods do not promise much in the way of either recognition or gain, and you'll have to balance "off" and "on" periods to "come out even." But you can do it—and profitably, too.

July, October and next January will be excellent for travel and, if you're single, the year ahead brings great promise of new romance and/or marriage. In this connection, your best months will be August, September, late October, December, next March and May.

Generous influences will govern your domestic and social life for most of the year ahead, but don't counteract these happy prospects by losing temper with loved ones, especially during September and late November. Unique creative enterprises launched in mid-December have an exceptionally good chance of succeeding before the end of next March.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a fine mind and will have great tenacity in the pursuit of goals.

Lone Back-Bencher Anti Gov't Death Penalty Bill

By JACK VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A young Conservative back-bencher voted against the tide Wednesday on a government bill he says heralds the abolition of capital punishment in Canada.

Maurice Johnson, 32-year-old lawyer representing the Quebec constituency of Chambly-Rouville, remained in his Commons seat as nearly 100 fellow Conservatives stood in favor of a bill that provides the death penalty for deliberate murder with life imprisonment decreed for slayings judged to be without premeditation.

Twenty Liberals joined Mr. Johnson as the bill was given second reading — approval in principle — by a vote of 139 to 21.

Mr. Johnson said he opposed the bill because it was, in his opinion, the first step toward abolition of capital punishment. This was denied by Justice Minister Fulton.

OPPOSES SECTION

The young partner in a Montreal law firm, who spoke in French, was especially opposed to a section of the bill exempting persons under 18 from execution.

This, he said, was a dangerous clause in these times of "serious juvenile delinquency" and of "young bands of robbers who don't hesitate to commit murder."

The protection of society must be the prime consideration of the legislator," he said, and the elimination of the death penalty took away society's most "efficient weapon."

The vote, ending two days of debate on the bill, was sprinkled with unusual features.

ASKED FREE VOTE

The Liberals, apparently decided on a free vote as far as their own party was concerned, added confusion to the counting by standing in no particular sequence to record their individual decisions.

The CCF voted with the Conservatives. Both CCF Leader Argue and Opposition Leader Pearson were absent when the vote was taken.

Mr. Fulton said the bill is "not an abolitionist measure or a first step toward abolition, but a bill for the purpose of bringing the present position with regard to capital punishment into line with present-day ideas of crime and punishment."

"What the bill does is to divide murder into two categories, namely capital murder and non-capital murder."

The bill retains the death penalty for "capital murder," cases involving deliberate slayings or those committed during a crime of violence. It provides a mandatory life-imprisonment sentence for "non-capital" murders and for juveniles under 18 convicted of capital murder.

RETAIN HANGING

No change is proposed in the method of execution—hanging—and there was no mention in the debate on how long a "life sentence" should run.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, the Liberal majority continued opposition to a government bill that would give the revenue minister arbitrary power to make decision in certain tariff cases without allowing appeals to the court.

Liberal Senator W. Rupert Davies of Ontario said the government should be permitted to carry out its tariff policies—but without "dictatorial powers" contained in the legislation.

The bill, which would provide a redefinition of imports of goods of a class or kind made in Canada on which higher tariffs would apply, made no progress, with debate being adjourned.

'Legs Diamond II' Hanged For Killing Bank Guard

LONDON (AP)—Victor Terry, 20-year-old killer who believed himself the reincarnation of the American prohibition-era gangster Legs Diamond, was hanged today for shooting down a guard in a bank robbery.

As he walked to the scaffold his mother, Mrs. Matilda Terry, prayed in a church not far away from London's Wandsworth prison.

Terry shot the bank guard in the chest, south of London, exactly an hour after his school friend, Flossie Forsyth, was hanged for another murder.

Terry's last wish went unanswered. He was refused permission to see for the first time his daughter, born four weeks ago to a 16-year-old unmarried London girl.
